

Packaging is a key element in every product in perfume industry: it allows us to transmit both values and sensations, project our wishes and aspirations... That's why it is essential to choose the appropriate materials and make sure their presentation is optimal.

The feel, durability and quality assurance offered by each material are decisive factors when it comes to decision-making. Pujolasos, an international reference in wood packaging for the premium sector, offers their clients advice about the most suitable materials and their respective features. Some of the first brands in this competitive industry have already placed their trust in our work (for instance: Puig, Rituals, Loewe and Boho Cosmetics, among many others).

Our team does not only possess a broad experience and a solid career in premium class perfume products, but also can count on its own R&D department.
